Le those who mistake ta'ent for genius, acience for inspirent and want to know what is true and affecting dramatic adv, go and hear Poliuto. They will learn to discern trucom untruth, and will no longer rise to the rank of God quarers of notes, skillful arrangers who mislead the public insels of the orchestra. For us those learned musicians a sere dressmakers, whose talent is to dissimulate, under riad dazzling garments, the deformities of the body. mere aressmakers, whose talent is to dissimulate, under rich and dazzling garments, the deformities of the lody. Polituto has produced the effect of a thunder stroke at the Thestare Italien. The whole audience, carried by that admirable music, applauded with fanaticism. The final of the second act, one of the most striking and grand inspirations, has been encored. It is there that we have the sublime Grado. The due of the third set has also been encored. That due breathes religious passion. That is what the inspired musicians write; that is fablic that is greatus.
